Preliminary Title: Access to Farmland: Issues and Actions

Type of Report (ERR, EIB, EB, TB, SOR,)
- ERR

Influential Scientific Information
- [ ] Highly Influential Scientific Assessment

Agency: Economic Research Service (USDA)

Agency Contact: Kelly B. Maguire <kelly.b.maguire@usda.gov>

Subject of Review:
Ensuring “land access” is a farm policy objective that targets orderly transition of farm operations, creating opportunities for emerging “beginning” farm operations and for farm operations that consist of operators that hail from “Socially Disadvantaged” groups (SDA). This objective is motivated by several trends, including the aging of the population of U.S. farmers, the growth in concentration of farmlands, credit constraints, and competition for land from urban and environmental uses. The purpose of this report is to better understand the mechanisms and barriers behind access to farmland for beginning and SDA farmers.

Purpose of Review:
This report was motivated by the 2018 Farm Bill (FB), wherein the US Congress tasked the USDA with an analysis of the barriers that prevent or hinder the ability of beginning farmers and SDA farmers to acquire or access farmland; and what USDA is doing to address these concerns.
